When I Grow Up

First Below Page 14 OIO

Mary and Lee play with Jim and Debbie.

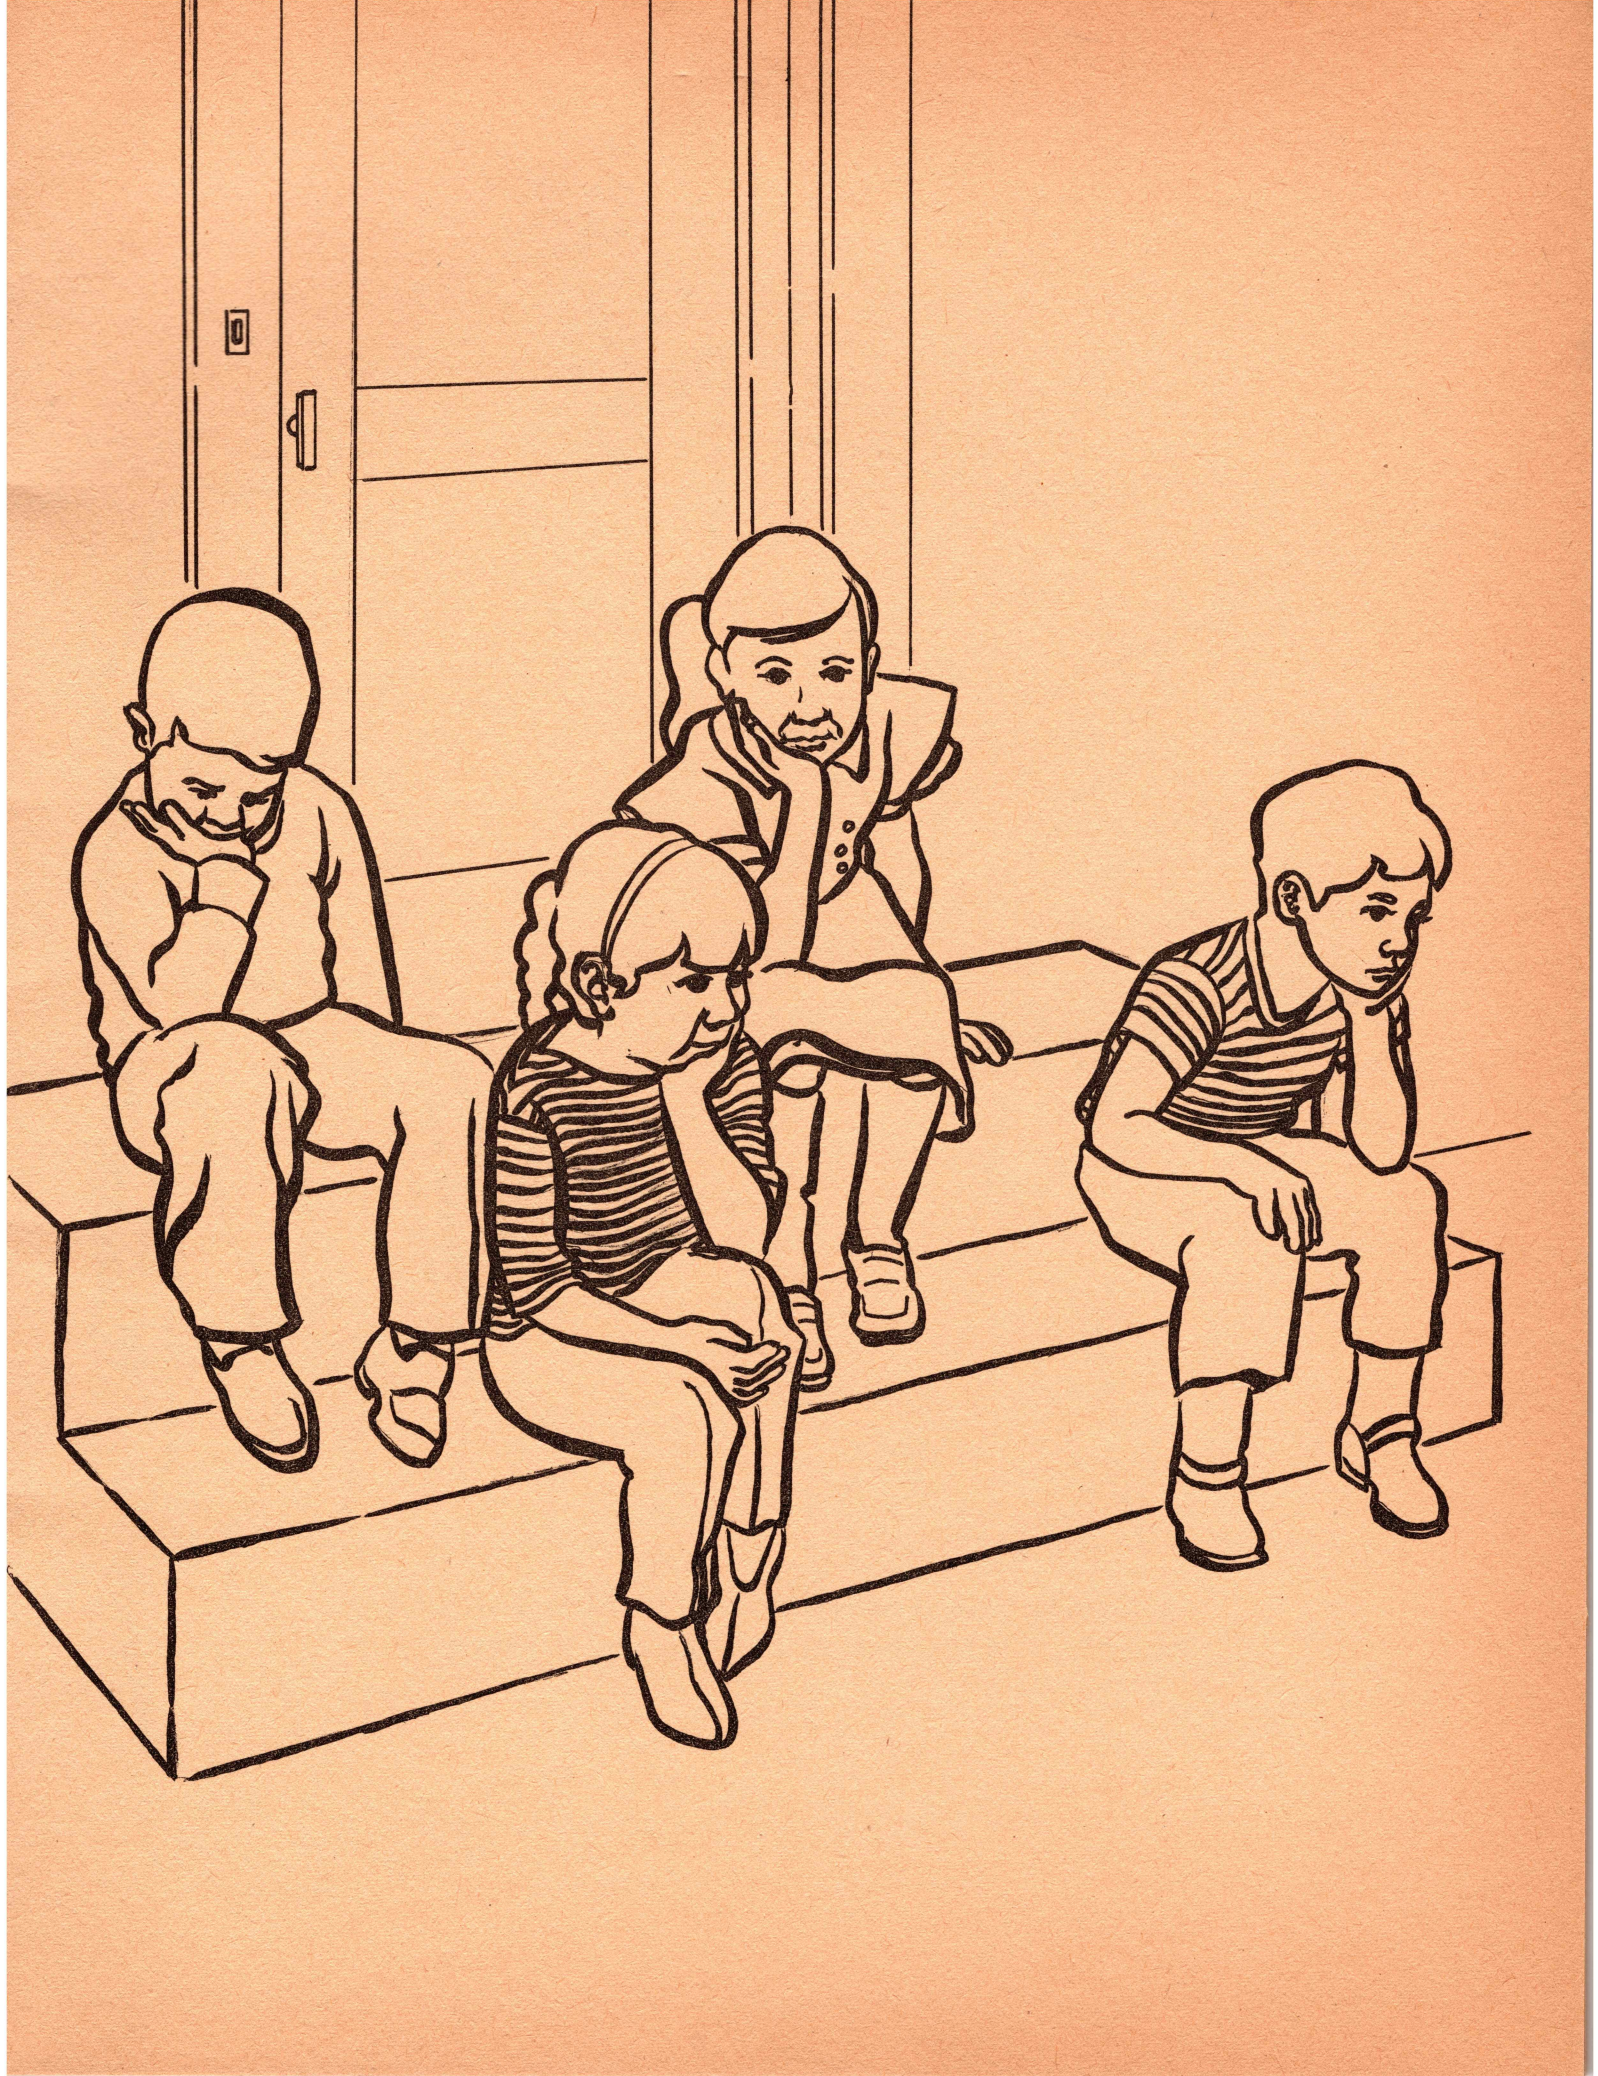

Together they can play ball. Sometimes they build things in the sand pile or make mud pies by the step.

They have fun doing things together.

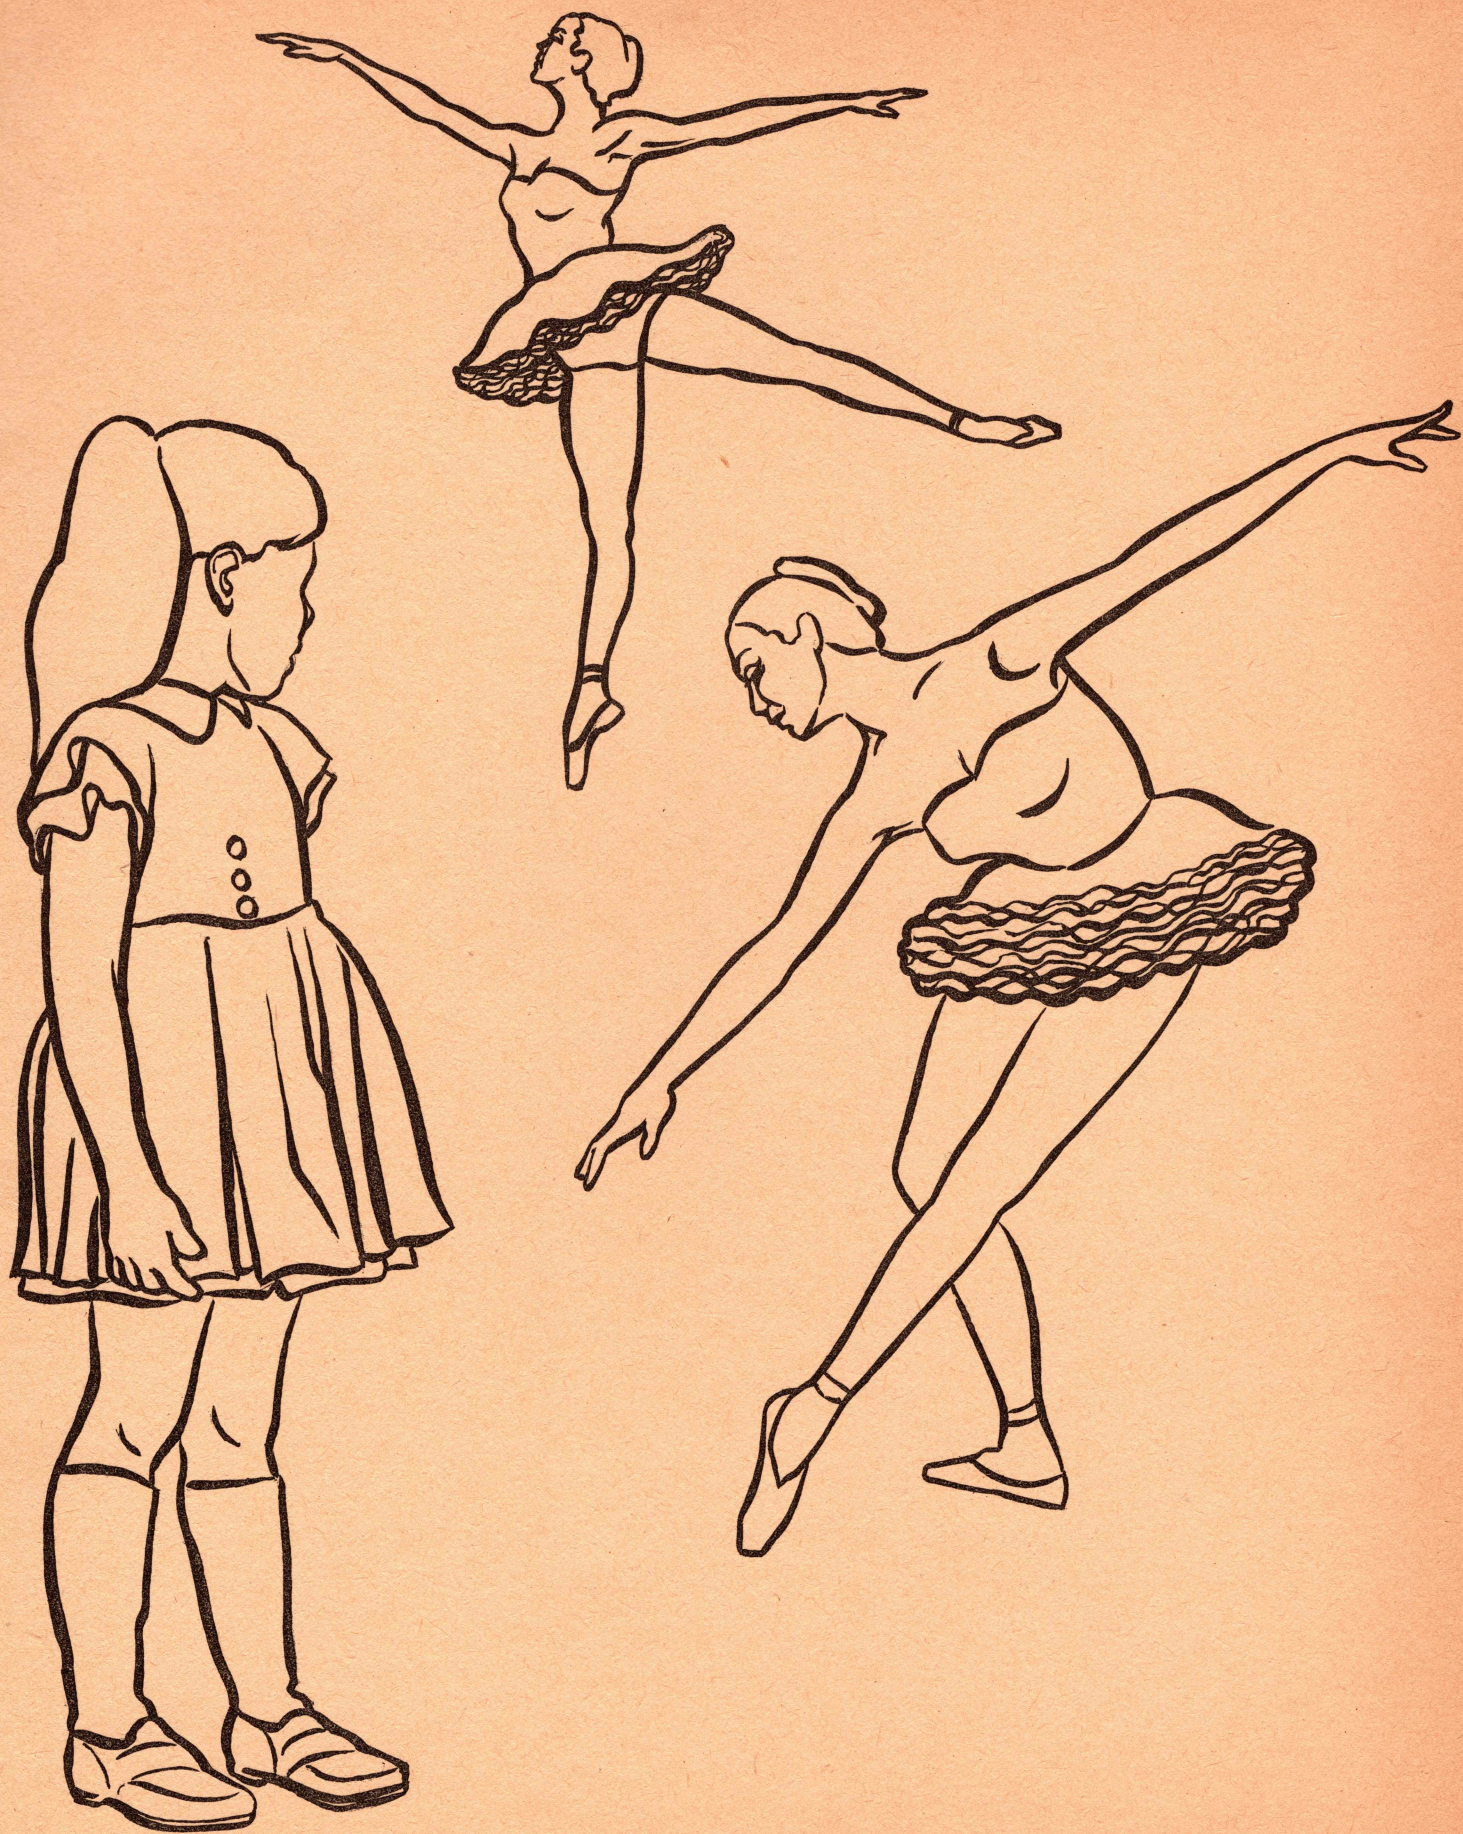

One day they were tired of playing ball. They didn't want to make sand castles. They sat on the steps of the porch and just looked.

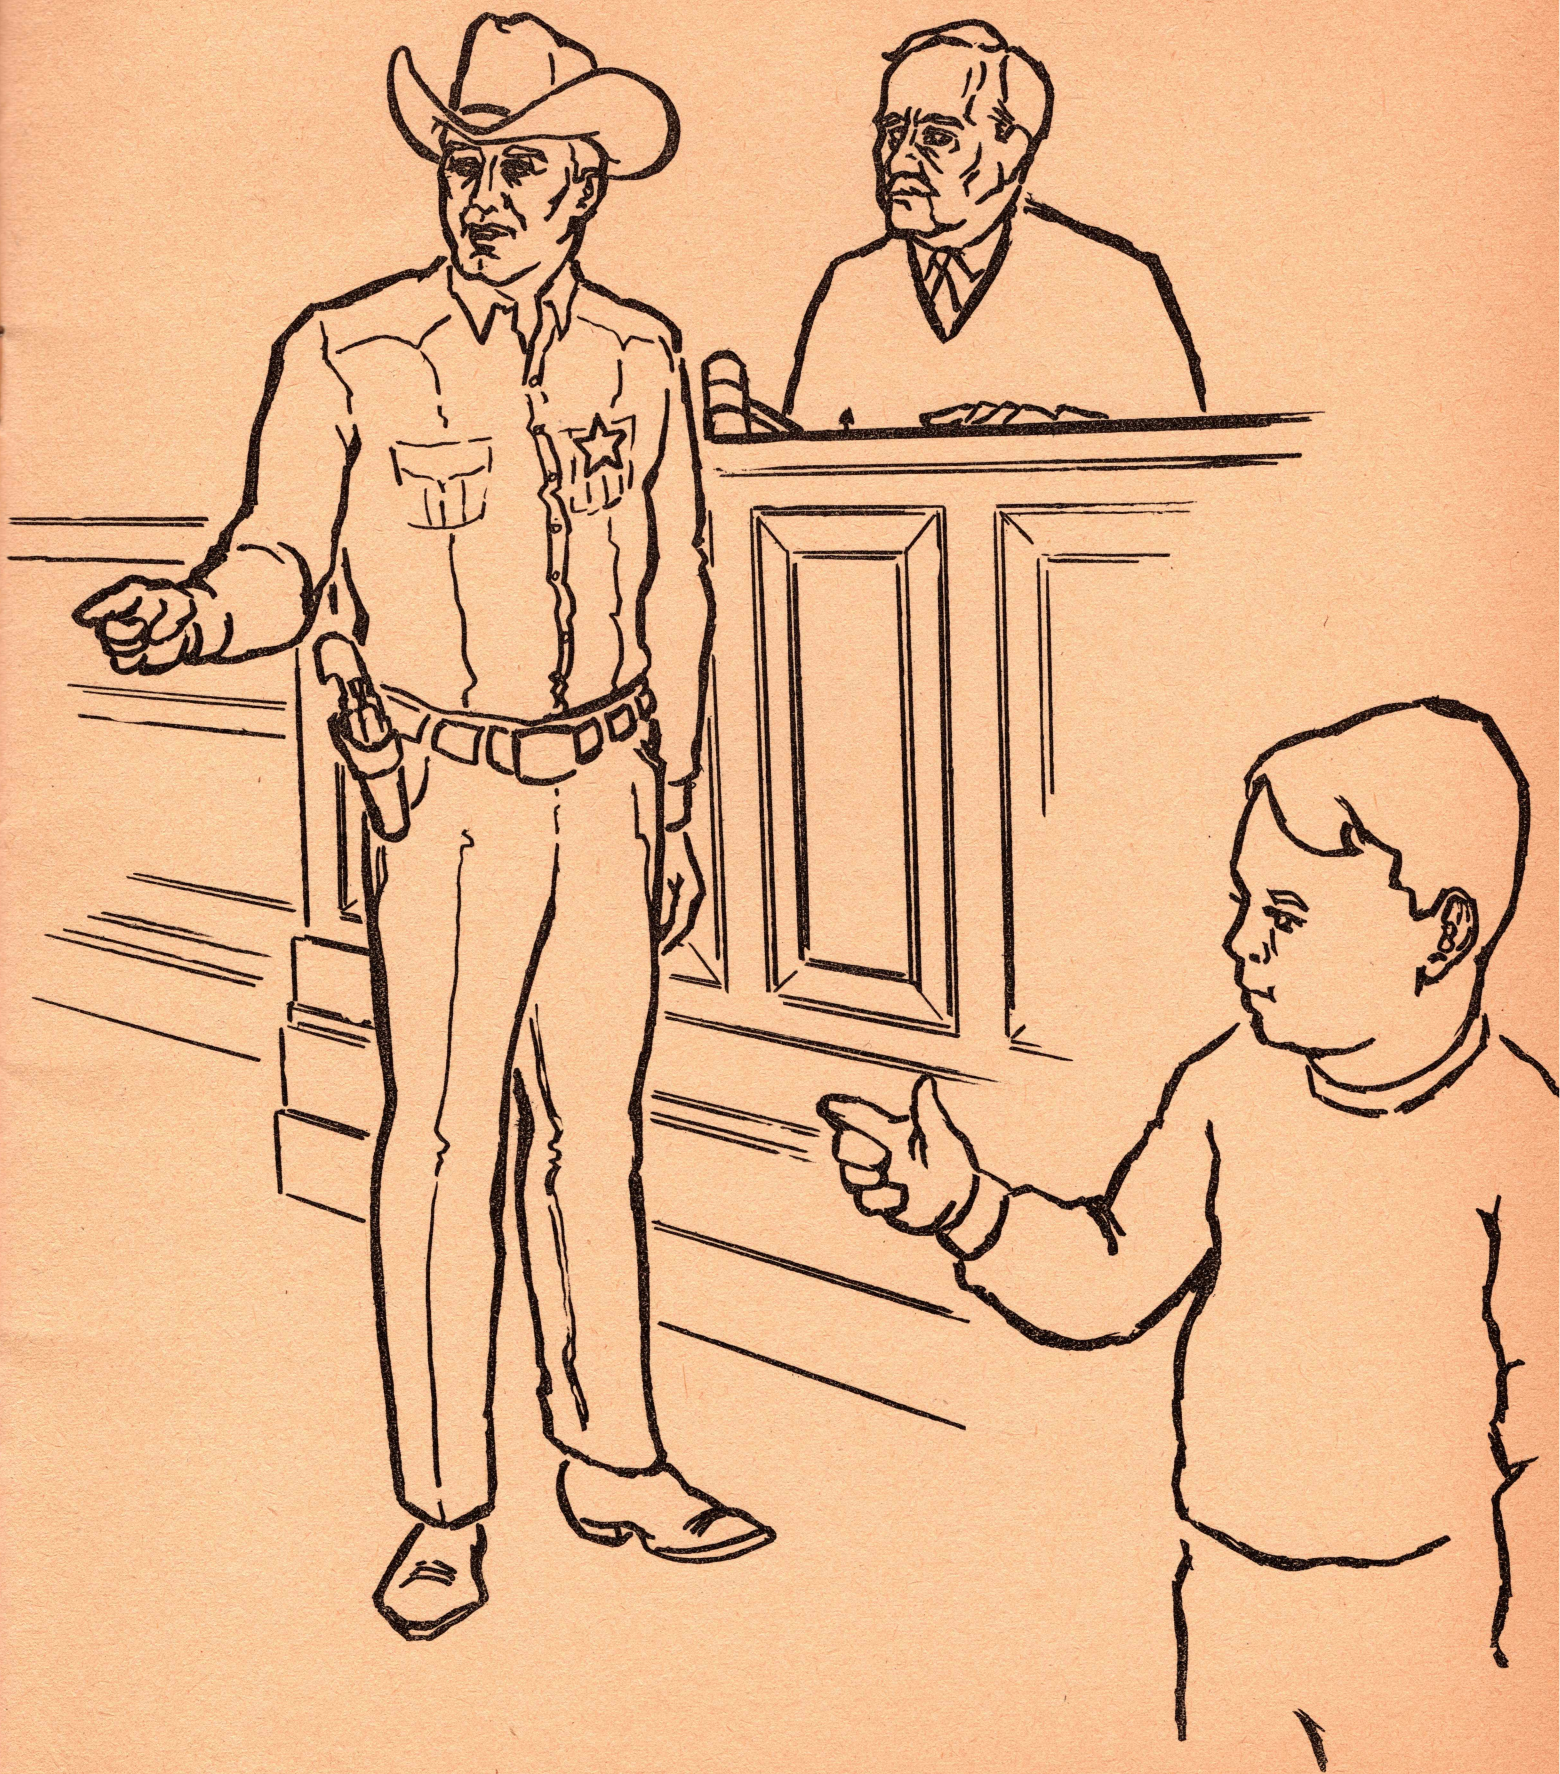

"What are you going to be when you grow up?" asked Lee.

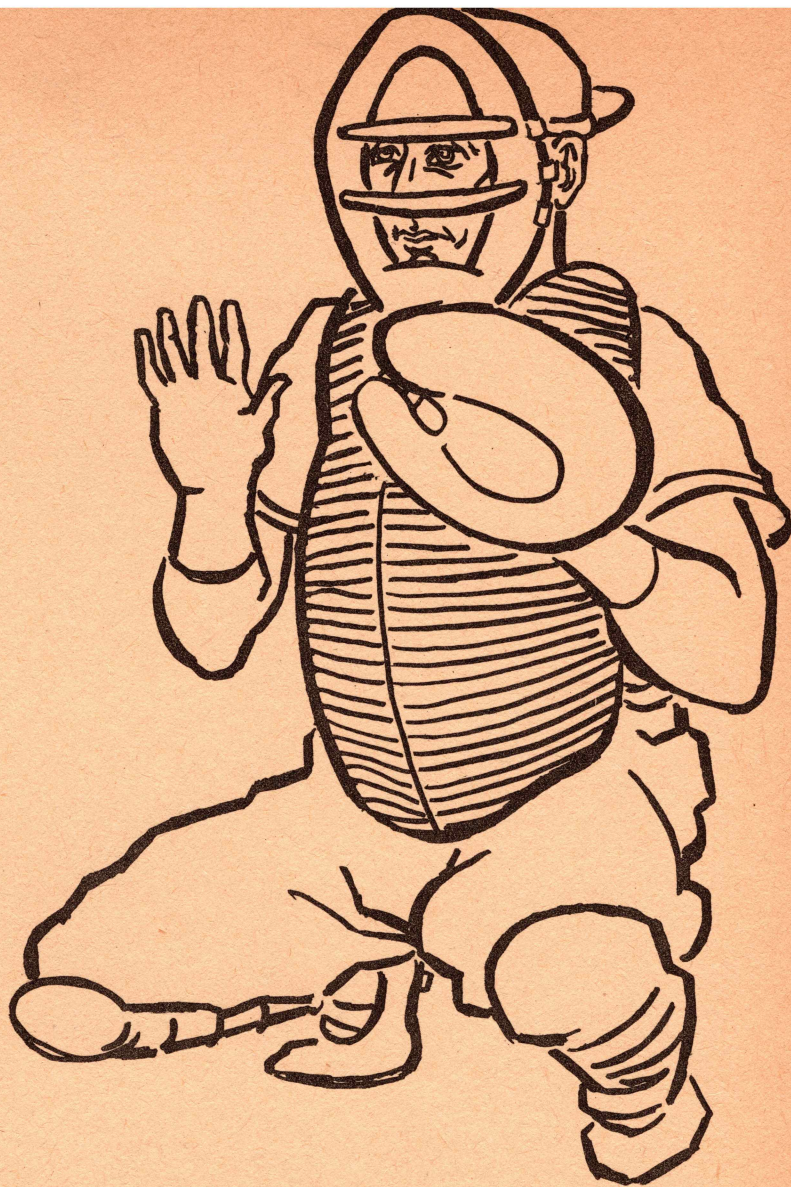

"I'm going to be a ballet dancer like Miss Tallchief," said Mary. "I saw her on TV. She was so pretty."

"When I grow up I want to be like Sheriff Douglas," said Lee. "Or be the Judge at the courthouse."

“You’re real good at playing ball, Jim,” Lee told him.
“Can you just play ball when you grow up?”
“Well, I could be a coach, anyway.”

"I'm going to get married and be a mother," said Debbie.

Color me La Donna - Cornorche.

Color Fred U.S. Morgrel - good stock,

Color daughter blonde.

"We're fading out," says La Donna.

La Donna is not fading out. Like Senator
Kerr, she matures and matures and matures

Who knows where she will take us?

What if Fred had not matured; to allow her to be more than "second fiddle" is a phenomena on his part today.

I was startled at first by this page. I had put $1.00 into O. I. O. - Oklahoma for Indian Opportunity. And I find my O. I. O. funds purchasing coloring books for Headstart of Indians? Plus political advertising which is profound in its approach.

"So am I," said Mary, "Maybe I'll be a senator's wife and go to Washington."

After I recovered from the shock, I left it to God. He works in wondrous ways.

“But I won’t spend all my time being a mother.
I think I’d like to work at the library part of the time.
I like books,” remarked Mary.

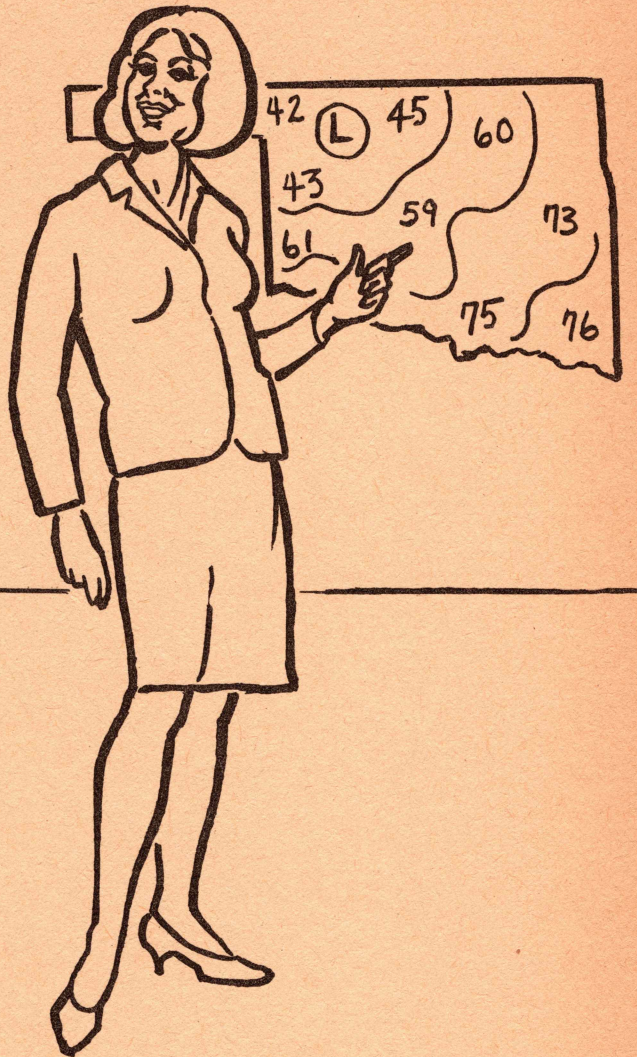

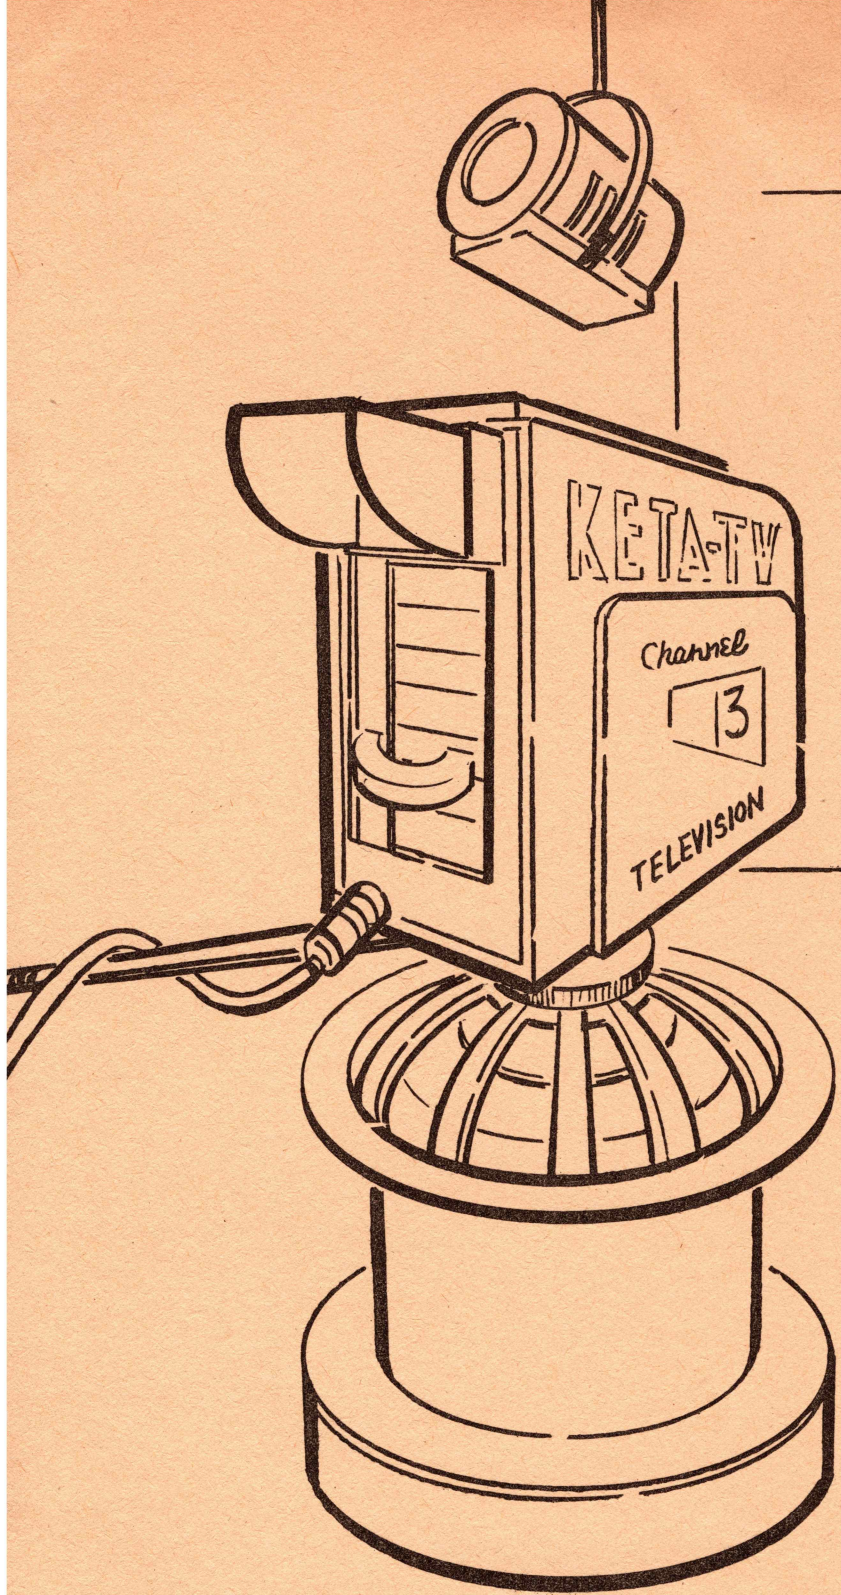

"Airplanes are exciting, and it's fun to fly.
"I guess girls can't be airline pilots, but I could be an airline stewardess."

"I'd like to be way up there in the clouds — you know what I might be? — An astronaut! Then I'd go way, way out in space."

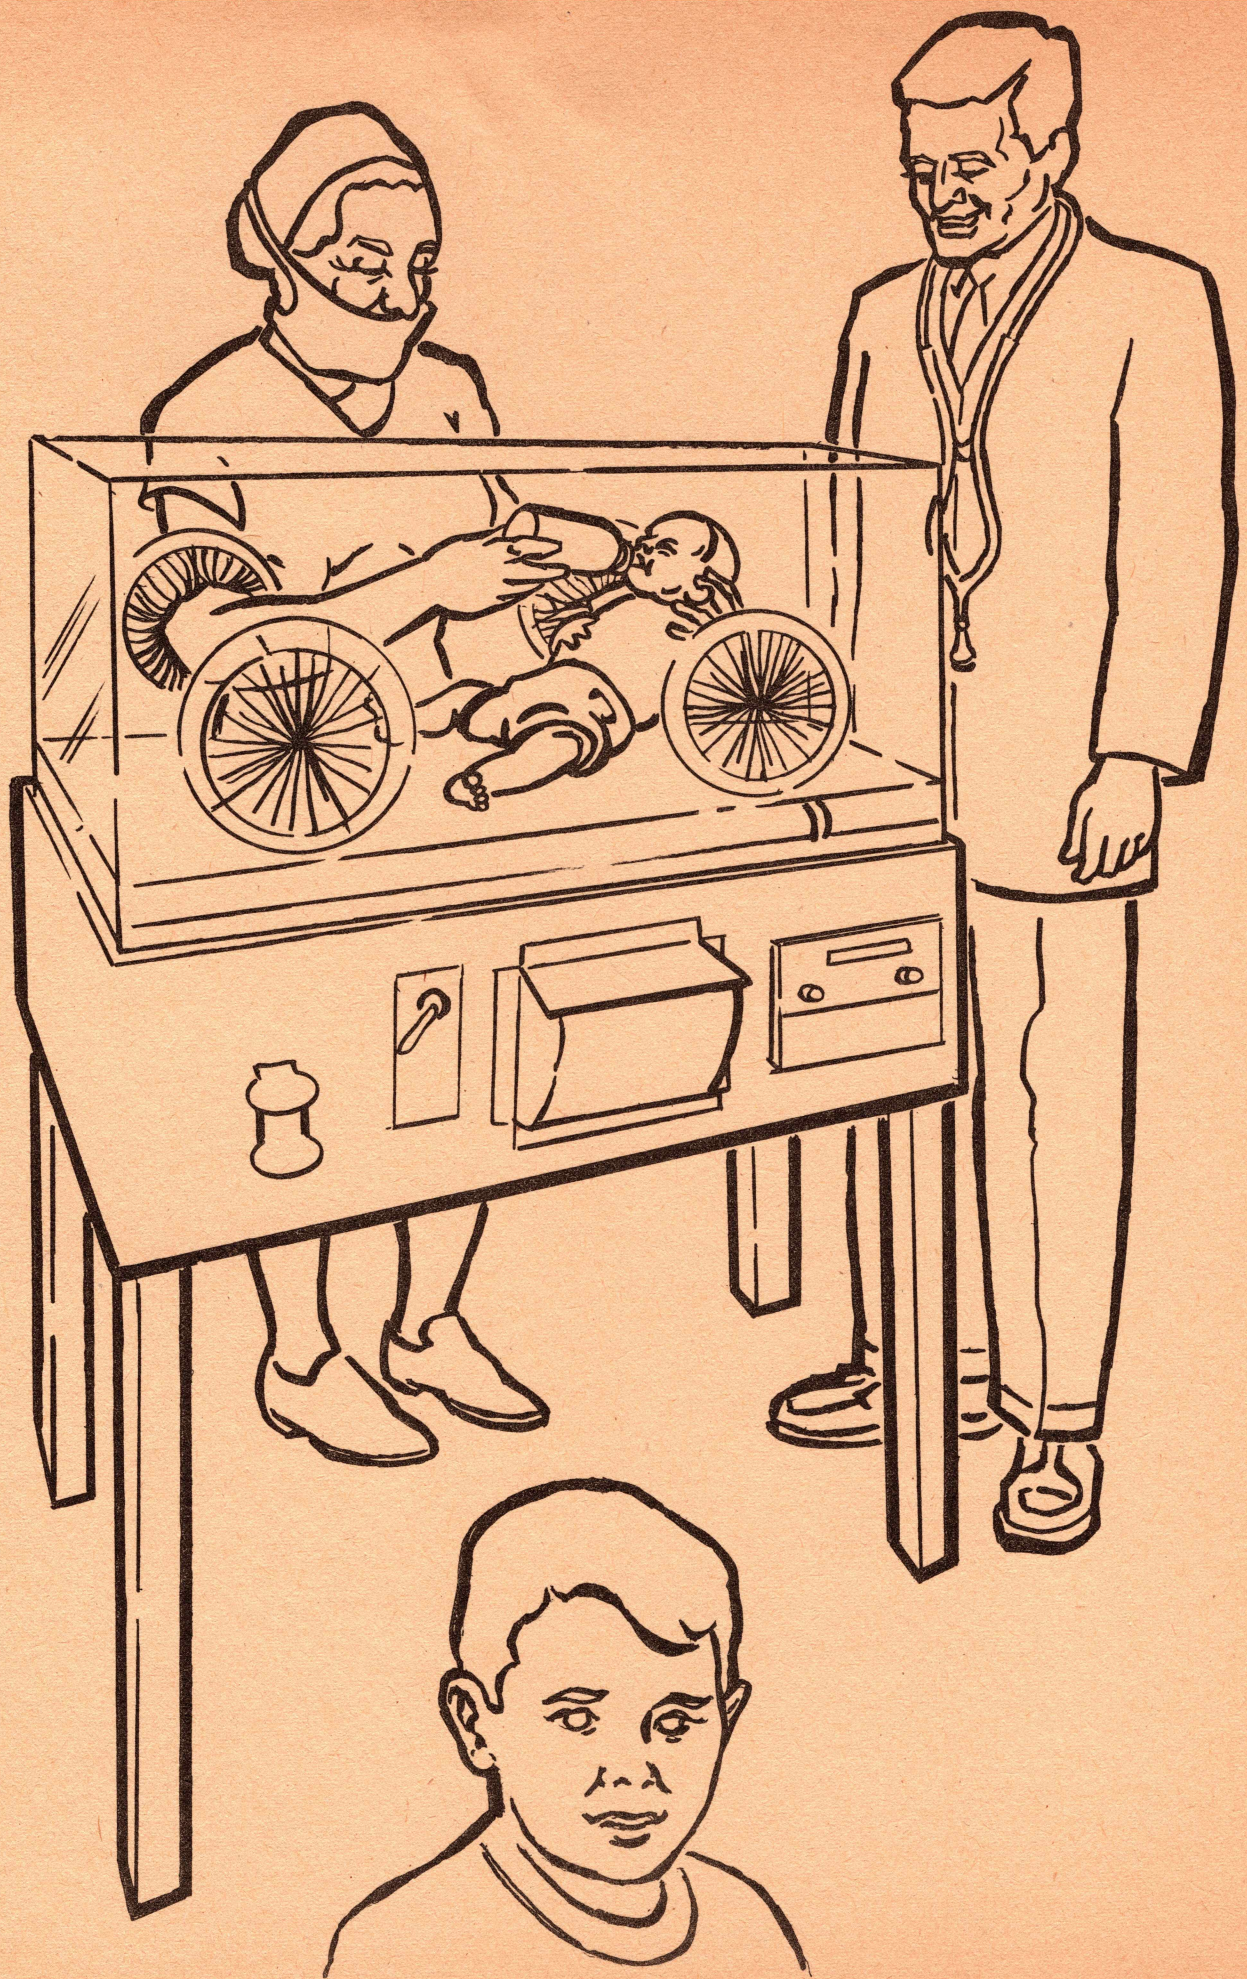

“Maybe girls don’t fly planes for airlines yet,
but they do give the weather news on television.
That might be a good thing to do.”

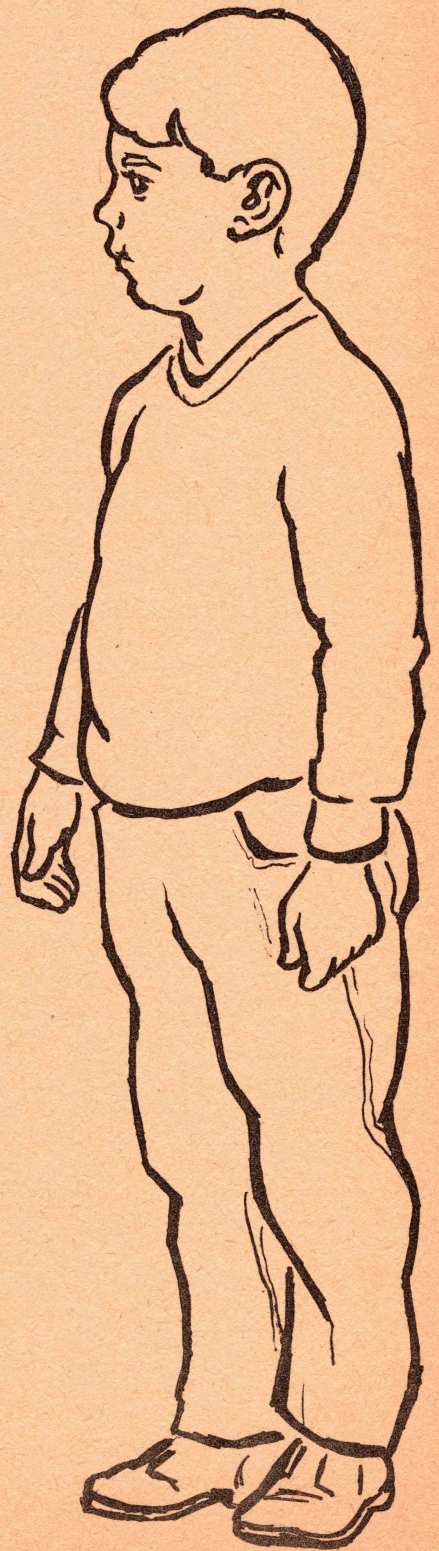

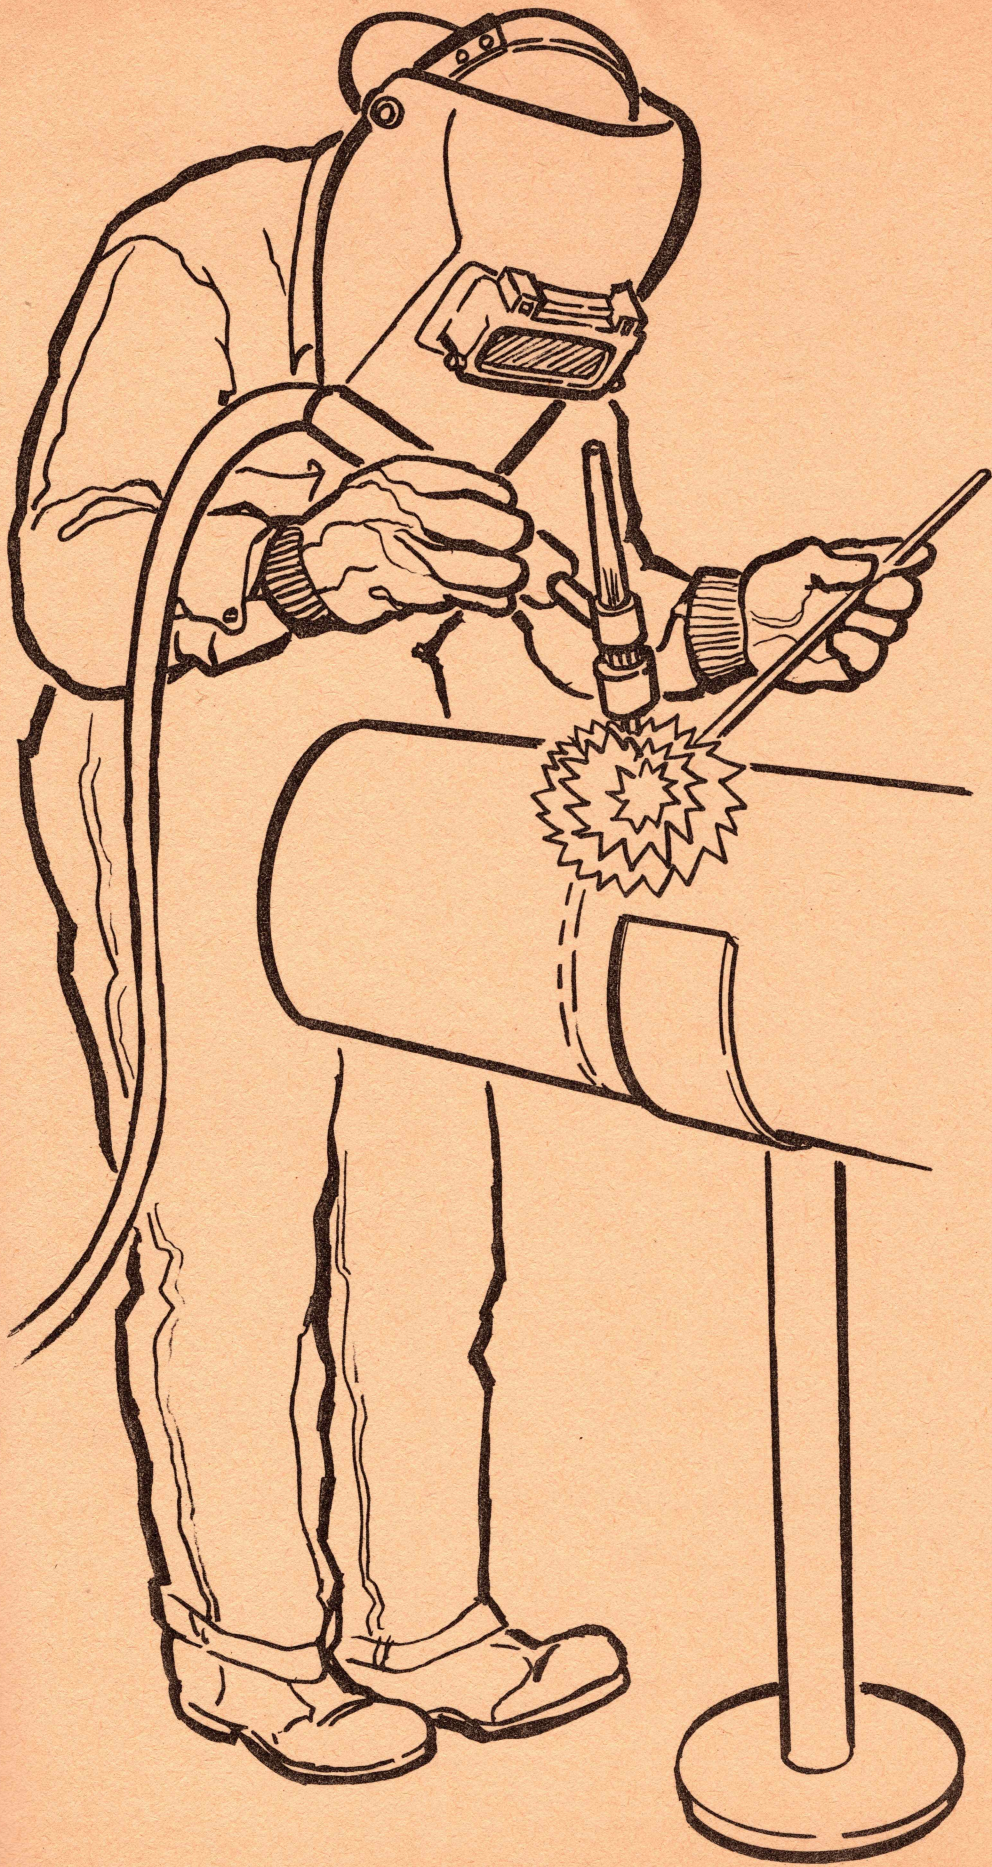

"My sister's going to be a nurse. My mother is a nurse while I stay with my grandmother."

"You could be a doctor, Lee."

“My brother’s a welder. He says it’s fun to make things out of metal.”

"A carpenter makes things out of wood — even houses."

"Hey! Look at this rock I found."

And as he spoke Jim pulled a small smooth stone from his pocket.

"So, what can you do with a rock?" said Lee.

"Well, you can play a game."

“OK, Debbie, which hand is it in?”
